SOUTH WEST REGIONAL PORTS ASSOCIATION

A Directory of Ports and Harbours in the South West Region

March 2018

The AIMS of the SOUTH WEST REGIONAL PORTS ASSOCIATION

- To provide a forum for ports and harbours within the South West Region to come together for regular discussions on topics affecting ports in the region.
- To provide self-help advice and expertise to members.
- To provide members with representation at all levels on all topics affecting port and harbour operations.
- To co-ordinate attention on issues including environment, leisure and tourism, road and rail links, contingency plans and future development of the South West.
- To support and encourage the British Ports Association.
- To improve trade using South West ports, particularly within the E.C.
- To establish link between ports in the region and the many leisure sure bodies including R.Y.A. Cruising Club, R.N.S.A. diving, fishing, power boating, rowing, 'et skiing and other organisations using harbours.
- To provide to the media and others, information and statistics on the ports industry.
- To support other bodies and organisations in ensuring the South West receives the necessary support and encouragement from Government and the E.C.
- To improve operations and co-operations between South West port members and Devon and Cornwall Constabulary, County Fire Brigades, H.M. Customs and H.M. Coastguards vigorously supporting initiatives on crime, drug smuggling and safety.
- To ensure Harbour users receive the best attention and service.
- To maintain and ensure the environmental aspects of harbours in the South West whilst ensuring they remain part of the living and working traditions of the South West.

ACTIVITIES:

Inshore commercial fishery, with associated fish quay. Small boatyard, marine services, diving and angling, Yacht Club for recreation watersports. About 100 small craft moorings.

Axmouth is a small tidal harbour, just east of Seaton. It lost its trade as a small commercial port about 1870. After years of decay, private efforts and Local Authority acquisition led to some repair in the 1970s.

Axmouth Harbour is owned by East Devon District Council (EDDC), they in turn lease the Harbour to Axmouth Harbour Management Company Limited (AHMC). AHMC has an independent Chair and Treasurer/Secretary together with representation from the Axe Yacht Club (AYC) and East Devon Fishermen's Association (EDFA).

AHMC leases the western side of the harbour to the AYC and the Eastern side of the Harbour to (EDFA). There is also a sub-lease from AYC to Axe Vale Canoe Club.

It became a recognised pilotage authority when the 1987 Pilotage Act came into effect. It has operated under the auspices of Sedgemoor DC since 1972. The port covers twenty five square nautical miles of mainly inter-tidal sand and mud banks off the coast (Brean Down to Hinkley Point), and over fourteen nautical miles of tidal estuary and river (Parrett, Bruce and Axe), but with a comparatively low level of trade and low density leisure usage. Although the council is responsible for conservancy of the harbour, all commercial wharves within the Port of Bridgwater are in private hands. Hanson Aggregates manages the aggregate import berth at Dunball Wharf. The other berths at Dunball and Bibby's Wharf are currently not in use for Port operations, except for occasional use of Dunball by the passenger vessel Balmoral. The Nuclear Electric roll-on roll-off berth at Combwich plays an important role in the transport of heavy loads for Hinkley Point Power Station. The port sees an Annual throughput of approximately 40,000 tonnes of aggregates.

PRINCIPAL OFFICERS Mike Johnson - Harbourmaster/Marine Officer
Rosie Elsey - Administrative Officer
Susan Hill - Finance Officer

ACTIVITIES:

The Trustees are the competent harbour authority and local lighthouse authority for the Gloucester Harbour. Main duties include the provision of a pilotage service, the siting, maintenance and improvement of aids to navigation and compliance with statutory environmental duties.

Pilotage is compulsory for larger vessels. Traffic within the Gloucester Harbour includes commercial vessels arriving at and departing from Sharpness Dock and aggregate dredging operations. Cargoes include cement, grain, fertiliser, forest products, stone, coal and scrap metal.

The docks and drydock at Sharpness are operated by private sector companies, although responsibility for operation of the lock gates and maintenance of water levels rests with the Canal and River Trust.

Leisure craft make up the remainder of the traffic, with considerable numbers of small craft gaining access to the inland waterway network via Sharpness Dock. The Severn Bore also attracts considerable numbers of surfers and kayakers to the harbour area.

Looe being only one of two charitable Trust Harbours in Cornwall. The modern Board of Commissioners have control of; two Harbour side car parks, lease a number of properties to various fish related businesses, oversee the fish market and fishing related services on the quay, provide moorings on the seaward side of the bridge (commercial & Leisure), engineering services to the fleet and employ 14 local people. The port of Looe is homeport to around 40 fishing vessels mainly under 10 metres. The boats range from trawlers to netters to hand liners for mackerel. The fleet employs approximately 120 fishermen. Fishing has always been the main integral industry in the port and although methods of fishing and legislation has seen much change over the years, there is still a viable fresh fish market held each weekday on the quayside which supports a number of ancillary fishing businesses.

ACTIVITIES:

Salcombe is an eco-port situated within an AONB, SSSI and is also a local nature reserve. Although it hosts a small but active shell fishing fleet it is predominantly a recreational and leisure harbour; there is no commercial traffic, although a number of small passenger ferries operate at high season within the harbour and also to Dartmouth. Most water-borne activities are catered for (yachting, sailing, canoeing and SUP) and the beaches within the estuary are also very popular with bathers.

Neither pilotage nor towage services are offered although small marine industry (boatyards, chandlery, fuel, water and electricity) can be obtained here.

Truro on the south coast of Cornwall has a number of leisure moorings (c1000) located around the upper half of the Fal Estuary. Visitors' pontoons are also available at Woodbury, Malpas, Ruan Creek and Turnaware Bar as well as berthing facilities alongside the quays in Truro.

Commercial facilities include Lighterage Quay, Newham (1.5 km downstream of the city centre) which is 350m x 10m wide, this tidal berth offers a central inland location for Cornwall and the South West. Facilities on the quay include a 50 tonne weighbridge and fresh water.

The Port currently handles general bulk and bagged cargo, palletised goods and other 'one-off' cargoes i.e. boat hulls, steel coils etc. Stevedoring, ships agency, pilotage and cargo storage (both open and covered) are all available locally.

There are a number of deep water lay up berths for large vessels situated in the King Harry Ferry. These moorings will accommodate vessels up to 190m Loa.

The Port of Truro also has a native oyster fishery which is open from the 1 October to 31 March each year which only vessels fishing by traditional means may dredge.
